'Make a clean breast,' said Wylie 'I have. Say as how you cooked the Proserpine's log, and forged Hiram Hudson's writing.'

'And the newspaper extracts you sent me, 'said Helen, 'and the letters from Mr. Hand.'

Arthur groaned. 'Must I tell all that?' said he.

'Eyery word, or he indicted' said.

'And, strange to say, the Greek e never appears in any of them. They are admirably like, though, of course, the matter is not always equally consistent with the characters of those personages.

Helen Rolleston married Robert Penfold. On the wedding-day, the presents were laid out, and amongst them there was a silver-box encrusted with coral. Female curiosity demanded that this box should be opened. Helen objected.

were laid out, and amongst them there or all who arthur groaned. 'Must I tell all that?' said he. 'Every word, or be indicted,' said Robert Penfold, sternly.

He wrote it all down, and then sat staring stupidly. And the next thing was, he gave a loud shriek, and fell on the floor in a fit. They sprinkled was necessary to man. Give had been bad wronged so deeply, but rather to moderate them, if required. Then he gave Burt fifty guineas.

Robert Penfold, at Helen's request, went with her to Mr. Hennessy, and with the proofs of Arthur's guilt and Robert's innocence; and he undertook that the matter should go in proper form before the Secretary of State. But, somehow, it transpired that the Proserpine had been scuttled, and several of the underwiters wrote to the Wardlaws sentor returned but one answer to these gentlemen: 'Bring your proofs to me at my place of business next Monday at twelve, and let me judge the case, before you go elsewhere.'

That is high and mighty,' said one or two; but they conferred, and agreed to these terms, so high stood the office the sterms, so high stood the stiff courtesy. The deposition of Cooper and Welch was produced, and Wylie, kept up to the mark by Nancy, told the truth, and laid his two thousand pounds intact down on the table. 'Now that is off my stomach,' said he, 'and I'm a man again.'

'Ay, and I'll marry you next week,' said Nancy.

'Yay, and I'll marry you next week,' said Nancy.

'Yay cores seems very clear. I will unde the whole cromoned to health, happiness and peace, and that entire union of two ways covers seems very clear. I will unde the whole transaction, and return woy your money less the premiums, but this said the after a fords.

he did on the spot, for the firm was richer than ever.

When they were gone, Robert Penfold came in, and said, 'I hear, sir, you devote this day to repairing the wrongs done by your firm: What can you do for me?' He laid a copy of Arthur's confession before him.

The old man winced a moment where he sat, and the Iron passed through his soul. It was a long time before he could speak. At last he said, 'This wrong is irreparable, I fear.'

Robert said nothing. Sore as his own heart was, he was not the one to strike a grand old man, struggling so bravely

Wardlaw and Son were partners at will. I had decided to dissolve that partnership, wind up the accounts, and put up the shutters. But now, if you like, I will value the effects, and hand the business over to Penfold and Son on easy terms. Robert Penfold has been accused of forging 'John Wardlaw's name; to prove this was a calumny, I put Penfold over my door instead of Wardlaw. The city of London will understand that, gentlemen, believe me.'

'Mr. Wardlaw, 'said Robert, 'you are a just, a noble—' He could say no more.

He wound up the affairs, had his name and Arthur's painted out at his own expense, and directed the painters to paint the Penfold's in at theirs; went home to Elm Trees, and died in three home to Elm Trees, and died in three days. He died lamented and honored, and Robert Penfold was much affected. He got it into his head that he had kill-

He got it into his head that he had killed him with Arthur's confession, putting it before him so suddenly. 'I have forgotten who said 'Vengence is mine,' said Robert Penfold.

The merchant priest left the office to be conducted by his father; he used the credit of the new firm to purchase a living in the Vale of Kent; and thither he retired, grateful to Providence, but not easy in his conscience. He now accused himself of having often distrusted God, and seen his fellow-creatures in

You gini to a bot, you did, I'm darned if I ain't kinder ashamed to talk of this world's goods to a saint upon airth like you.

But I never knowed a parson yet as couldn't collar the dollars.'

After this preamble he announced that he had got a lease of the island from Chill, dug a lot of silver plate out of the galleon, sold ten tons of choice coral, and a ship load of cassia and coca-nuts. He then disposed of his lease to a Californian Company for a large sum. 'I, Arthur Wardlaw, confess that I forged the promissory note for £2,000, and sent it to Robert Penfold, and that £1,400 of it was to be for my own use, and to pay my Oxford debts. And I confess that I bribed Wylle to scattle the ship Proserpine in order to cheat the underwriters.

Penfold then turned to Wylle, and asked him the true motive of this fraud.

'Why, the gold was aboard the Shannon,' said Wylle; 'I played hanky panky with the metals in White's store.'

'Put that down,' said Penfold. 'Now go on.'

HENRY D. COOKE, Vice-President.

This Company, National in its character, offers, by reason of its Large Capital, Low Rates of Premium and New Tables, the most desirable means of insuring life yet presented to the public.

The rates of premium, being largely reduced, are made as favorable to the insurers as those of the best Matuai Companies, and avoid all the complications and uncertainties of Notes, Dividends and the misunderstandings which the latter are so apt to cause the Policy-Holder.

Sevemal new and attractive tables are now presented which need only to be understood to prove acceptable to the public, such as the INCOME-PRODUCING POLICY. In the formethe policy-holder not only secures a hie insurance, payable at death, but will receive, if living, after a period of a lew years, an annual income equal to ten per cent (10 per cent) of the pur of his policy. In the latter the Company agrees to return to the assured the total amount of money he has paid in, in addition to the amount of his policy.

The attention of persons contemplating insuring their lives or increasing the amount of insurance they already have, is called to the special advantages offered by the National Life Insurance Company.

MANHOOD,"—ANOTHER NEW MEDICAL PAMPHLET from the pen of Dr. Curtis. The "Medical Times' says of this work: "This valuable treatise on the cause and cure of premature decline, shows how health is impaired through shows how health is impaired through secret abuses of youth and manhood, and how eastly regained. It gives a clear synopsis of the impediments to marriage, the cause and effects of nervous debility, and the remedies therefor." A pocket edution of the above will be forwarded on receipt of 25 cents, by addressing Doctor Curtis, No. 58, North Charles Street, Ealtimore, Md.
